

LOST in reciprocal space...

Albite has a complex triclinic crystal structure: when tilting several ED appear very similar between them. Using precession, dynamical diffraction effects are greatly reduced and ED patterns are very close to ideal kinematical different ZA orientations can be easily distinguished using precession